Abstract:

This panel aims to preliminary map and assess the response to COVID19 around the world and in particular in China. This includes government response, but also responses by other stakeholders such as the media, NGOs, netizens, the international community, and the general public. Presentations may take a political science, public policy, international relations, or public administration perspective. Topics of interest include but are not limited to crisis management, crisis preparedness, framing and crisis communication, international collaboration, learning, and policy change.
