Welcome from ECPR's Executive Committee Chair

Dear Participants

Welcome to the ECPR's 46th Joint Sessions, and welcome to Nicosia!

In some respects, this is a very special Joint Sessions. In the first place, the Joint Sessions were held in Nicosia before, in 2006. They were hosted then by Intercollege, just one year before Intercollege Nicosia became the University of Nicosia. Apart from the name change, the University of Nicosia is now one of the small and select group of ECPR member institutions that has organised a major ECPR event twice!

We are extremely grateful to our Nicosia colleagues, and especially to the local organising committee of professors Emilios Solomou, Constantinos Adamides, and Michalis Kontos for inviting us back. After all, Cyprus and its capital Nicosia are not only a beautiful, but also a most interesting venue for a meeting of political scientists: the country's strategic location in the Mediterranean has given it more than its fair share of international turbulence and still unresolved domestic conflict.

It is also special because we have a near-record 30 Workshops meeting here. Perhaps Kris Deschouwer and Anna Sroka, who put together the academic programme, and the staff of ECPR Central Services, were inspired by the University of Nicosia motto: 'Think Big!'

The themes of the Workshops are a veritable catalogue of contemporary political challenges: migration, populism, political personalisation, lack of inclusiveness, organised crime, Euroscepticism, financial crisis, digital (non)democracy, etc, etc.

The programme now also includes a workshop on Teaching and Learning in Political Science, following on the growing interest for panels in this field at recent General Conferences!

We thank the Workshop Directors for their efforts in first putting together a winning Workshop proposal, and then to select you, the participants.

Add to this programme of parallel workshops the plenary meeting featuring the Stein Rokkan Lecture by Kevin Featherstone with the intriguing title From Grexit to Brexit.

Apart from returning to Nicosia and growing bigger, the core of the Joint Sessions' successful formula remains unchanged: bring together small groups of senior and junior scholars working on a particular theme, for five days, to discuss intensively each other's Papers, while offering plenty of opportunities to meet and mingle with the participants in parallel Workshops.

I wish you all an inspiring, productive, and pleasant five days!

...and the local organisers

Dear Participants

On behalf of the Local Organising Committee and the Department of Politics and Governance, I welcome you to the University of Nicosia; the host of the 46th ECPR Joint Sessions of Workshops.

We are proud to be hosting this event in 2018. Although young as a University, we have a long tradition in the field of international relations and politics that goes back to the mid-1990s, so we are very honoured and excited to have the opportunity to host one of the most prestigious events in our field at our University.

Nicosia, the last divided capital in Europe, combines a history that goes back centuries and prominently displays the marks left by its various conquerors. It is at the same time a modern city that, as the capital of the Republic of Cyprus, stands as the outpost of the European Union in the Eastern Mediterranean.

The island of Cyprus has a lot to offer that would cater to the interests of all visitors: you can taste the rich Cypriot cuisine, visit archaeological or religious sites and enjoy a trip to the Troodos Mountains or to the sea. Museums and art galleries are easily accessible for those who prefer less physically adventurous escapades.

The University has tried, in close co-operation with the ECPR Central Services, to take care of all the organisational logistics in a most meticulous way. We hope you experience a very productive conference and take with you rich and pleasant memories from your visit to Cyprus.

We have placed at your disposal our premises, which we trust will offer you what you need to help you make the most of your participation in the 46th Joint Sessions.

The University of Nicosia

A regional leader with pioneering initiatives and a forward-thinking vision

UNIC is the largest university in Cyprus, and the largest university in Southern Europe that teaches primarily in English, welcoming 11,500 students from over 70 countries across the globe. It is a comprehensive university with over 100 conventional on-campus and online programmes of study, and particular strengths in medicine, health sciences, law, accounting, and international relations. UNIC's recent focus is characterised by innovation in new technology and transnational programme delivery.

Thinking big internationally

The University of Nicosia has been instrumental in the internationalisation of higher education in Cyprus and the wider region. It founded and operates the first and largest medical school in Cyprus, in collaboration with St George's, University of London. UNIC also offers a series of innovative joint degrees with some of the leading universities in Europe.

Moreover, UNIC has been a pioneer in online education in the Mediterranean, supporting its own degree programmes, as well as those of joint degree partners throughout Europe.

UNIC also stands out for a number of global firsts in its dynamic initiative in cryptocurrency and blockchain technology. More specifically, it was the first university in the world to: (a) offer a course and degree programme in the field; (b) deliver graduates from a programme of this type; (c) publish academic certificates and diplomas on the blockchain; and (d) accept bitcoin for tuition.

Regional leader in IR studies

UNIC's Department of Politics and Governance continues a strong tradition on topics surrounding International Relations and European Studies, with special focus on Eastern Mediterranean Studies. Reputed as a leading IR department in the region, it focuses primarily in security, energy, economic and societal issues of the broader region through its academic programmes, publications, conferences and collaborations with local and international governmental and non-governmental actors.

The Department's academic programmes offer particular specialities in Middle East and Eastern Mediterranean Studies, Energy and International Security, European Integration, Law and Politics in the EU, and Public Administration.

The Department is associated with the Centre for European and International Affairs (CEIA), a leading think-tank in Cyprus, while it also runs the Diplomatic Academy and the Dialogue Chair in Middle Eastern Studies. It publishes The Cyprus Review, the premier English-language refereed journal on Cyprus and International Relations.

Out and about in the city

The capital city of Cyprus, Nicosia is a vibrant place, where the ancient past and contemporary present blend seamlessly

The medieval city of Nicosia is thousands of years old, with Venetian Walls encompassing a variety of historical landmarks.

Historic attractions

The Medieval Walls 16th century walls including eleven pentagonal bastions with rounded orillons and protected by an 80m moat.

Famagusta Gate Significant gate of Venetian Nicosia, opening onto the road that led to the island's most important harbour town.

Phaneromeni Church Built in 1872 next to an ancient Orthodox nunnery, it is the largest church within the walls. The marble mausoleum located in the east of the church contains the remains of bishops and other clerics executed by the Ottomans in 1821 in reprisals for the beginning of the Greek War of Independence.

Agios Ioannis Cathedral Church Renovated in 1662 by Archbishop Nikiforos. The recently restored 18th century frescoes painted during the era of Archbishop Silvestros recreate scenes from the Holy Bible and the discovery of Apostle Varnavas' tomb in Salamina.

Omeriye Hamam Built 1570–71 after the island fell to the Ottomans, this bath complex or hamam was dedicated to the Caliph Omar and the area became known as Omeriye.

Selimiye Mosque Nicosia's biggest mosque, known historically as the Cathedral of Saint Sophia. It is the largest and oldest surviving Gothic church in Cyprus – and possibly constructed on the site of an earlier Byzantine church.

Agios Ioannis Cathedral Church

Shopping

Ledras and Onasagorou streets in the old city are full of souvenir shops and stores with traditional Cypriot goods. Makarios Avenue and Stasikratous street in the new city feature all the familiar high-street chain stores.

Museums

Cyprus Museum Archaeological museum; early human settlement.

Museum of Natural History 2,500+ exhibits of Cypriot flora, fauna and geology.

AG Leventis Gallery Modern, eco-friendly art gallery.

Shacolas Tower Museum and Observatory 11th-floor view across the city; exhibition of Old Nicosia.

Leventis Municipal Museum Traces the history of Nicosia from prehistoric times to the present day.

Byzantine Museum and Art Galleries of the Archbishop Makarios III Foundation Rare icons from 5th–19th century; European Art Gallery; Greek Independence War Art Gallery.

Cyprus Folk Art Museum pottery, metalwork, carpentry, textiles and folk art housed in Gothic monastery.

Nicosia Municipal Arts Centre Contemporary art gallery in refurbished power station.

The European Consortium for Political Research

The ECPR is an independent, scholarly association that supports and encourages the training, research and cross-national co-operation of political scientists through Europe and the world

Membership

ECPR membership is institutional and currently comprises nearly 350 universities concerned with the teaching and research of political science. Membership is paid by the university, but it is the individuals within it who receive the benefit; from Master's and PhD students, through to the most senior professor.

ECPR events

General Conference

The ECPR's General Conference is the largest annual gathering of political scientists in Europe, regularly bringing together some 2,000 scholars from across the world. This year's academic programme features 70 Sections and around 500 Panels covering the full spectrum of political science and international relations, as well as an engaging Plenary programme of topical and high-profile lectures and Roundtables.

Joint Sessions of Workshops

Unique in format and considered the highlight of the annual international political science calendar, the Joint Sessions of Workshops have been held in a different European city every spring since 1973. The Joint Sessions remain extremely competitive, with a strict limit of 15–20 participants per Workshop, all of whom are researching in that particular field. Participants present a Paper which is then discussed in detail by the full group, providing unrivalled opportunity for feedback and development of research.

Methods School

ECPR believes that good research requires solid methodology. Our biannual Methods School offers training across all methodologies, and caters to the needs of macro- and micro-level research. The courses, which can be followed on their own or combined over one or more events, cover quantitative and qualitative designs as well as positivist and interpretative perspectives.

Publications

Journals and book series

ECPR co-publishes four leading journals: European Political Science, European Journal of Political Research, European Political Science Review and the European Journal of International Relations. It also publishes the high-profile Comparative Politics book series, with Oxford University Press.

This year sees the launch of a brand-new Open Access journal, Political Research Exchange, published in partnership with Taylor & Francis.

ECPR Press

In 2005 the ECPR launched its own imprint: ECPR Press. The Press publishes high-quality Monographs and collections of Essays, along with a small selection of Classics that have made a significant contribution to political studies scholarship.

Now published in partnership with Rowman & Littlefield International, the imprint also includes a highly respected series of multi-authored, edited volumes, Studies in European Political Science, many of which have developed from Workshops and Panels at ECPR events.

Standing Groups and Research Networks

The ECPR's Standing Groups and Research Networks are formalised groups of researchers that operate with the institutional support of the ECPR. Reflecting the breadth of the discipline, there are currently over 50 groups covering all sub-fields of political science and international relations. Anyone with an interest in that field can join a Group or Network and instantly connect with scholars working in their area through regular mailings, organisation of Sections, Panels or Workshops at ECPR events, annual meetings or even their own international conferences and summer schools.

The Winter School in Methods and Techniques takes place around February/March each year; the Summer School runs July–August. Combining the Summer and Winter Schools, you can follow training tracks to create a bespoke package.

Funding

To encourage participation in ECPR events, every year we award around 200 grants to scholars from full-member institutions. Grants are a key membership benefit, but the number for each event is capped, so applying does not guarantee success. Applicants are limited to one ECPR Grant/Registration Refund in any two-year period.

ECPR grants contribute towards attendance and are paid after the event. We also offer funding to our Standing Groups, either as 'seed money' to help start up a new group, or to support the organisation of a summer school. See the Funding tab of our website to find out more.

MyECPR

Staff and students at member institutions are encouraged to set up a MyECPR account, through which you can register for events, and keep track of Section, Workshop, Panel and Paper submissions. You can also make contact with other scholars who share your research interests, and subscribe to relevant news bulletins.

Prizes

ECPR awards ten prizes each year. These recognise achievement at all stages of a scholar's career, including the annual Jean Blondel PhD Prize for the best thesis by a scholar at a member institution, and the biennial Lifetime Achievement Award, for a scholar who has made an outstanding contribution to the discipline.

Jean Blondel PhD Prize

Verena Wisthaler
University of Leicester and EURAC Research

Immigration and Collective Identity in Minority Nations: A Longitudinal Comparison of Stateless Nationalist and Regionalist Parties in the Basque Country, Corsica, South Tyrol, Scotland and Wales

Since 2003, the ECPR has awarded an annual prize for the best PhD thesis in politics, encompassing International Relations, Political Theory, and Public Administration.

The prize fund is €1,000 and the winner is offered the opportunity to adapt their thesis for publication with ECPR Press.

The Blondel Prize jury, which was unanimous in its choice of winner, was last year chaired by Birgit Sauer (University of Vienna, also representing the ECPR). The jury also comprised Mary Farrell (Plymouth University), Petra Meier (University of Antwerp), and Ferdinand Müller-Rommel (Leuphana University Lüneburg).

Verena's thesis evaluates stateless nationalist and regionalist parties' identity constructions between 1992 and 2012. Her focus is on the Basque Country, Corsica, South Tyrol, Scotland and Wales. How do these parties construct national identity in a context of rising immigration? Do they consider migrants and diversity an integral part of minority nations?

This dissertation is the first to deal with such questions in a longitudinal study and with a comparative perspective on the stateless nations. It takes a qualitative approach, analysing parties' discourses on immigration and their policies on migrant integration.

Verena's study shows that the parties take different approaches to immigration and the construction of the nation in times of rising immigration. She explains convincingly these different approaches by carving out the specific political-institutional relations between the state and the minority nation on the one hand, and the conflict-free societal relations between the minority nation and the state majority living within the minority nation on the other.

All parties instrumentalised the immigration discourse to differentiate themselves from their national governments and to strengthen their own strategic interests.

Covering different fields of political science, including party analysis and studies on immigration and integration, Verena argues persuasively that a sort of 'instrumental nationalism' exists, which facilitates identity construction based on civic and territorial markers. This strategy allows for the inclusion of diverse immigrant groups – but is always constructed against the central state.

Our Jury's verdict

'Overall, this thesis generates timely and innovative knowledge, and opens up new paths in comparative political science analysis. A pleasure to read, Verena's dissertation is problem driven, and therefore contributes to our understanding of urgent societal and political problems.'

Blondel Prize shortlist

Clara Egger
University of Grenoble
ONG: Organisations Néo-Gouvernementales Analyse des Stratégies Étatiques de Contrôle des ONG Humanitaires en Zones de Conflit (1989–2005)

Ingrid Doris Mauerer

Cynthia M.C. van Vonne

Rudolf Wildenmann Prize

Dorothee Riese

Leipzig University

Negotiating Secrecy: How Parliament and Executive Debate the Possibilities and Limits of Executive Secrecy

This €1,000 prize is awarded annually for the best Paper presented at the previous year's Joint Sessions. Candidates must have gained their PhD within the previous five years.

The jury, chaired by Kris Deschouwer (Vrije Universiteit Brussel), also comprised Birgit Sauer (University of Vienna), Reuven Hazan (Hebrew University of Jerusalem) Anna Sroka (University of Warsaw) and Cas Mudde (University of Georgia).

Democracy requires information to be able to travel without limits. Yet we may need secrecy to attain certain democratic goals, such as the respect for privacy, the secrecy of the ballot, confidentiality in deliberations or classified information in national security issues.

The central question of Dorothee's Paper is: How can secrecy be reconciled with democracy?

The first part explores the relation in a theoretical way, and concludes that there is no general rule on whether or when secrecy is legitimate. It is rather a matter of negotiation.

The second part analyses debates in the German Bundestag on the degree to which secrecy is accepted or criticised in public-private partnerships, where public services are provided by private actors who might want to protect their business secrets.

Our Jury's verdict

'Dorothee's Paper stood out for its original but difficult topic, and for its effective combination of theoretical depth and careful empirical analysis.

Dorothee carefully maps the debates, and demonstrates nicely how there is indeed a constant search for the balancing of different values and procedures.

She also shows how secrecy can be seen both as a problem related to control mechanisms, and as a necessity for achieving democratically set goals.'

Understanding the Challenges to the Governance of the European Union*

From Yanis Varoufakis to Nigel Farage, the challenges to the European Union's system of governance are deep, complex and interrelated.

The normative and the structural combine: the politics of populism, identity, and confined choice are matched by institutional issues of accountability and delivery. Nor are the problems confined to Europe's periphery: as Viktor Orbán or the AfD indicate.

At this existential moment, we learn more of what the EU stands for and what might bring it down. Political science, more than economics, provides the diagnosis and offers the options.

Kevin Featherstone is Head of the European Institute at the London School of Economics and Political Science, where he is the Eleftherios Venizelos Professor of Contemporary Greek Studies and Professor of European Politics.

He has published widely on Greek politics and history and on the politics of the European Union. His book, co-authored with Kenneth Dyson, The Road to Maastricht, was listed by the European Parliament as one of the '100 books on Europe to remember'.

He was awarded the Order of the Phoenix by the President of the Hellenic Republic in 2013.

Ask a student helper in a red T-shirt!

Wi-fi

Open.

Computer labs

Two rooms on campus are at your disposal for the duration of the Joint Sessions: B101 and B113 on Floor 1 of the Central Building.

Currency

Cyprus is in the eurozone €. Major credit cards are accepted, though some outlets may not take MasterCard, Diners Club and Maestro.

Using a credit card abroad often incurs a fee, so check with your bank prior to arrival. Banks in Cyprus exchange all major currencies in either cash or travellers' cheques.

Banking hours

Monday – Thursday 08:00 – 14:30
Friday 08:00 – 14:00
Closed at weekends

Cash machines / ATMs

There is an ATM at Coffeeology 101, though be warned that withdrawals incur a €3 charge.

There are also several banks with ATMs 200–300 metres from the University, on 28 Oktovriou Avenue.

Telephone

International dialling code for Cyprus is +357

For police, ambulance or the fire service dial either 199 or 112. An English language option is available.

Night pharmacies in Nicosia

MyECPR housekeeping: help us help you!

Please keep the institution and email address in your MyECPR account up to date. That way, we don't waste members' money trying to contact dormant accounts, and you won't miss out on early-bird bargains. Clean data also means our communications can be streamlined and better targeted to your needs.

Did you know that you can use the Research Interests field under My Profile to let us know your particular areas of study? This data helps us improve the accuracy and relevance of keyword indexes in conference programmes.

Might you have more than one historical MyECPR account associated with an email address you no longer use? (Don't be shy; it's quite common.) Contact support@ecpr.eu to let us know, and we can merge the data in this account with your live one, no problem.

Absorbing the Blow: Populist Parties and their Impact on Parties and Party Systems

Steven Wolinetz &
Andrej Zaslove (Eds)

The significance of populist parties and their presence in party systems is undeniable. Parties like the Dutch Freedom Party, the French National Front, and the Five Star Movement in Italy rank among the largest political parties in their party systems. Absorbing the Blow seeks to analyse the way in which mainstream parties absorb the blow of populist party activity, and concludes that populist parties are one of several factors contributing to changes in party systems.

Mind the Gap: Political Participation and Representation in Belgium

Kris Deschouwer (Ed)

Based on ten years of research on political participation and representation in Belgium by the interuniversity team PartiRep, Mind the Gap is a book about the difficult times of modern representative democracy, and how political science is trying to make sense of it. Chapters deal with political socialisation; representation; economic, preference and personalised voting; identity politics and campaign effects; and the ways elites and citizens try to make sense of a complex and linguistically divided country.

*Cleavages, Institutions and Competition:
Understanding Vote
Nationalisation in Western Europe
(1965–2015)*

Vincenzo Emanuele

How has the vote nationalisation process evolved in Western Europe over the last fifty years? Which factors account for vote nationalisation's variance across the Western European party system? Through a macro-comparative perspective and original empirical research, involving 230 parliamentary elections in sixteen countries, this book answers these questions.

*Cartelisation,
Convergence or Increasing Similarities?
Lessons from Parties in Parliament*

Henrik Enroth and Magnus Hagevi (Eds)

It is often suggested that party politics has become an elite affair, where professionals collude to further their self-interest rather than work to represent their constituents' interests. But this controversial 'cartel party theory' has not yet been subject to empirical scrutiny. In this volume, political scientists with a variety of specialisms take on the task, focusing on the Swedish party system. Presenting new and unique data, they cast serious doubt on the validity of the cartel party theory as an explanation for system change.

*National Institutions –
International Migration:
Labour Markets,
Welfare States and Immigration Policy*

Frida Boräng

Immigration is one of the most salient issues in OECD countries today, yet we know surprisingly little about the factors behind the different choices countries have made on immigrant admission. This book shows that the differences are, to a significant extent, a result of how labour markets and welfare states have approached inclusion and exclusion. By developing and testing an institutional explanation for immigrant admission, Frida Boräng offers a theoretically informed, and empirically rich, analysis of variation in immigration policy among OECD countries.

Giovanni Sartori: Challenging Political Science

Michal Kubát and Martin Mejstřík (Eds)

Giovanni Sartori (1924–2017) was a founder and icon of contemporary political science. Covering comparative politics, social science methodology and political theory, this volume brings together selected essays that examine Sartori as a scholar, university professor and intellectual. General overviews of Sartori's contribution to political science are complemented by chapters that focus on specific areas of his interest; and Sartori's theoretical and methodological contributions are examined alongside his public appearances, which remain little known outside Italy.

A United Nations Renaissance
What the UN is, and what it could be 2017. 166 pp. Pb. 19,90 € (D),
US$26.00, GBP 17.95
ISBN 978-3-8474-0711-9

This short introduction to the United Nations analyzes the organization as it is today, and how it can be transformed to respond to its critics. Combining essential information about its history and workings with practical proposals of how it can be strengthened, Trent and Schnurr examine what needs to be done, and also how we can actually move toward the required reforms.

Demographics of Korea and Germany
Population Changes and Socioeconomic Impact of two Divided Nations in the Light of Reunification
2018. 127 pp. Pb. four color, 17x24,
34,90 € (D), US$49.00, GBP 31.95
ISBN 978-3-8474-2152-8

Korea and Germany are commonly described as emblematic examples of divided nations. But while Korea is still divided Germany has gone through a peaceful unification. The book offers a unique comparative study on the demographic change in these divided countries. It also investigates the developments after Germany's unification. Based on this demographic insights of a merged society it asks about their use and limits for a possible Korean scenario of reunification.

ISBN 978-3-8474-2143-6

Comparison is an essential research method in political science. This book helps students to understand comparison as an academic instrument, to grasp its necessity and its effective purpose for research. For that reason the author answers three 'simple' questions: why compare; what to compare; and, how to compare. Doing so, he considers not only the comparative tradition but he takes also into account methodological innovations of the last two decades.

ERIS – European Review of International Studies seeks to be a journal to which those who wish to know what is happening in 'European' International Relations can turn. It aims to achieve this goal by an extensive review section of monographs published in European languages and review articles of the literature on substantive themes or significant developments in different European academic communities. Its other principal goal is to publish original articles and from time to time translations of existing major articles not readily available in English.
